Class actions concerning Amex Bank of Canada credit cards

$2,650,000 Settlement

Option consommateurs and Amex Bank of Canada (“AMEX”) have reached an agreement in three class actions and one motion for leave to bring a class action filed against AMEX and several other financial institutions.

The class actions cover the following practices related to AMEX credit cards:

1. The absence of a complete 21-day grace period;
2. The charging of credit fees in the absence of a 21-day grace period;
3. The charging of over-limit fees; and
4. The charging of cash advance fees.

This settlement, which must be Court-approved, may affect your rights.

Please read this notice carefully.

BASIC INFORMATION

Why is this notice published?

The purpose of this notice is to inform you that Option consommateurs and AMEX have reached a settlement putting an end to the class actions and the motion for leave to bring a class action filed against AMEX. Option consommateurs and its attorneys believe that the settlement is the best solution for the members; they will ask the Superior Court to approve it.

The Superior Court will hold a hearing to determine whether it will approve the settlement and modify the time period of the class actions. You may attend the hearing, which will be held on June 20, 2019 at 14h in Room 2. 07 of the Montreal Courthouse, located at 1 Notre-Dame Street East in Montréal.

What was the purpose of the class actions?

Fortin and St-Pierre Class Actions: Option consommateurs claims that, between July 18, 2000 and August 31, 2010, AMEX contravened the Consumer Protection Act by charging credit fees while failing to grant the class members a 21-day grace period to meet their obligations;

St-Pierre Class Action: Option consommateurs claims that, between July 20, 2000, and August 31, 2010, AMEX contravened the Consumer Protection Act by failing to grant the class members a 21-day grace period to meet their obligations;

Lamoureux Class Action: Option consommateurs claims that, between January 12, 2001 and September 30, 2010, AMEX contravened the Consumer Protection Act by charging the class members a fee when they went over their credit limit.

Corriveau Class Action: Option consommateurs claims that, between October 4, 2001 and September 30, 2010, AMEX contravened the Consumer Protection Act by failing to include in the calculation of credit rate, the fee charged to the class members when they used their credit card to obtain a cash advance.

AMEX contests the merits of the four class actions and asserts that it has complied with applicable legislation at all times.

Who are the group members?

You are a member of either one of the groups if you meet all of the following conditions:

1. You are a natural person;
2. You are a party to a contract extending variable credit (credit card) that was entered into in Québec with AMEX;
3. You have not used your credit card for the purposes of operating a business; and
4. One or more of the following applies to you:
 - a. At any time between July 18, 2000 and August 31, 2010, you paid credit charges without having been granted a 21-day grace period to pay to meet your obligations (Fortin class Action);
 - b. You paid over-limit fees between January 12, 2001 and September 14, 2016 inclusively (Lamoureux Class Action);
 - c. You paid cash advance fees between October 4, 2001 and September 14, 2016 inclusively (Corriveau Class Action);
 - d. At any time between July 20, 2000 and August 31, 2010, you have not been granted with a complete 21-day grace period to pay to meet your obligations (St-Pierre Class Action);

SETTLEMENT SUMMARY

What is the settlement amount?

Without any admission of liability, AMEX agrees to pay a total amount of $2,650,000 in full and final settlement of the class members' claims.

How will the money be distributed?

The amount that will be distributed as direct compensation to the members is the balance of the settlement value minus the following deductions: the cost of publication of the notices and the fees sought by the Option Consommateurs' Attorneys' to be approved by the court, i.e 5% plus tax of the total amount to the firm Sylvestre Painchaud et Associés, s.e.n.c.r.l. and 5% plus tax of the total amount to the firm BGA Inc. This amount will be distributed in equal shares to each of the Eligible credit card accounts that meet the criteria defined in the settlement agreement.

Who may receive a share of the compensation?

A share of the compensation could be credited to your AMEX credit card account if your account is open and active, if it is associated to a billing address in Québec, if it is not in default, and if it meets the additional compensation criteria defined in the settlement.

If your account meets the additional compensation criteria defined in the settlement, your share of the direct compensation will be credited directly to your account, without you having to take any action whatsoever.

The exact amount of the direct compensation that will be credited to each consumer credit card account will only be known at the time of distribution. However, the parties estimate that this share should be approximately $ 8.
